AN INFIRMARY PLAN ADOPTED

COUNTY COURT AGREES ON DESIGN FOR NEW BUILDING

TO OPEN BIDS MAY 29

Cost is Estimated at $35,000—Each Dormitory to Have Room for Fifteen Beds

A design for a new Nodaway County infirmary was adopted by the County Court today and bids for its construction will be opened on May 29.

The general design was worked out by N. B. Hazen, architect of Lincoln, Neb., and submitted by E. R. Leverton, construction engineer of the Crown Construction Co,, of the same city. The court suggested a number of changes and they will be incorporated in complete plans and specifications to be prepared by the architect.

Bids will be advertised for on three successive Saturdays, beginning May 8, and they will be opened at 2 o'clock on the afternoon of Saturday, May 29. Actual construction will begin as soon thereafter as possible.

The plan agreed upon provides for a building 122 feet long. A center section, 34 by 56 feet, will contain two stories, on each side of which will be a wing containing the two dormitories for men and women patients.

A porch will extend across the center section of the building. The lower floor of this section wil contain an office, living quarters for the superintendent and his family, separate dining rooms for men and women patients and for the superintendent's family, and one general kitchen.

Each dormitory will accommodate fifteen single beds. A sick room in each wing will have space for two more beds. A sun porch, locker space, toilets, shower and tub baths will be provided in each wing.

The dormitory plan represents the most radical departure from the plan of the old building, which had small, single rooms for each patient. The dormitories will provide more light and air and will be much easier to keep clean, the county judges believe.

The second floor of the central section of the new building will have seven bedrooms which may be used by the superintendent or other employes or by those of the patients who are able to live upstairs.

The cost of the new building is estimated at $35,000 plus the materials salvaged from the old building. It will be of brick, steel and concrete, and the roof will be of Spanish tile or other fireproof material. Even the floors will be of concrete, covered by linoleum. Although it will be necessary to build new basement walls, the excavation under the old building can be used.

The court ruled that each bid submitted for building the new structure must be accompanied by a check for 10 per cent of the amount.

Nebraska City, Neb., Raises Hospital Fund

Offer of $150,000 Institution By Sisters of St. Francis, of Maryville, is Accepted

Nebraska City, Neb., has successfully closed a campaign for $75,000 to be used in the erection of a $150,000 hospital by the Sisters of St. Francis, according to a telegram received here today by Mother Superior Augustine, who heads the order.

The sisterhood will add another $75,000 and the new hospital will be begun at once. The telegram from Nebraska City said, "Today we have passed the $75,000 mark with subscriptions from 1,028 persons, authorizing acceptance of the proposal from your hospital."

The mother house of the Sisters of St. Francis is located here, and sisters who direct the new hospital will be sent from here. The order also has hospitals at Oklahoma City, Okla., and Hannibal, Mo., and railroad hospitals at Decatur, Ill., and Moberly, Mo. The Oklahoma City institution is about three times as large as the hospital here.

The Sisters of St. Francis of Maryville, Mo., the full name of the order, now have a membership of nearly 100.

Home from Florida

Judge William Woods of Burlington Junction was a Maryville visitor today. Judge and Mrs. Woods and their daughter, Miss Grace Woods, returned Monday night from a visit of five months in Hollywood, Fla. This is the fifth winter they have spent in Florida.

Judge Robertson Asks Re-Election

Present Judge of Probate Court, First Elected in 1918, Files for Democratic Nomination

Judge Jesse F. Robertson filed today as a candidate for the Democratic nomination for probate judge. Judge Robertson was appointed probate judge in 1917 by Governor F. D. Gardner to succeed Judge Conn, who died while holding office. He then was elected in 1918 and re-elected in 1922.

According to present indications, Judge Robertson will have no opposition for the nomination.

ALASKA THEME IN TALK TODAY

E. C. RAINE SPEAKS ON NORTH IN COLLEGE ASSEMBLY.

BEEN THERE SINCE 19

Aurora Borealis Most Spectacular Sight Of All, Authority Tells Student Body.

Edgar C. Raine, one of the world's best authorities on Alaska, spoke at the State Teachers College assembly this morning. Mr. Raine illustrated his lecture with fifty-three stereoptican slides, which portrayed life and customs of the North.

The speaker, who has spent part of each year since he was 19 years old in Alaska, showed great knowledge of his subject. He told of twelve years which he spent as special agent for the United States Treasury and of his varied experiences in handling financial problems for the government.

In speaking of the Aurora Borealis, Mr. Raine said that it was the most wonderful sight he had ever seen. He told of the myarid of lights which radiate from the horizon and said that the spectacle is awe-inspiring.

In speaking of agricultural conditions, Mr. Raine said that the largest rhubarb in the world is grown in Alaska. "Why, when it rains up there, all that one has to do is cut a stalk of rhubarb. Then he'll have an umbrella while its raining, and enough rhubarb to feed a family for a week," he said.

Mr. Raine showed pictures of the dog team which he drove for eight years. He showed a picture of an Eskimo woman who saved the life of a famous educator. When the man became well he asked this woman what he could do to repay her. She said that she would rather have him than anything else, so they were married.

Mr. Raine told of and showed pictures of the famous dog team which took antitoxin to Nome to ward off the diphtheria epidemic.

The speaker this morning is on his thirteenth tour of the United States, speaking in forty-five of them. He has twice toured Europe. Each summer he goes to Alaska, where he still maintains a home and mining interests. He will leave in June for the North.

This afternoon, he spoke to the combined geography classes of the College on Alaska.

Young Bride, Wed One Month, Asks Divorce

Romance lasted but a month for Mrs. Emma Scheaffer, according to a suit for divorce filed today against Edward Scheaffer for trial in Circuit Court. Not yet 21 years old, the young bride sues through William Hafley as "next friend."

The couple were married on November 28, 1925, according to the petition. On December 23, the bridegroom was arrested on charge of having committed forgery in Kansas and he is now confined in jail in Mitchell County, Kan.

Mrs. Scheaffer asks for restoration of her maiden name of Emma Hafley.

Diplomas For Rural Graduates Prepared

Leslie G. Somerville, county superintendent of schools, is busy this week in making out diplomas for rural school graduates and in receiving term reports from teachers and clerks of school boards. A number of rural schools already have closed, but the diplomas are not presented until the commencement exercises at various towns.

Mr. and Mrs. J. T. O'Howell, Miss Carrie Warner and Mrs. Daily Foster of Parnell were guests yesterday at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Joe Eaton of Barnard.

VER HAAR AND PRESTON GOOD

ARTISTS PLEASE IN CONCERT AT COLLEGE.

'MESSIAH' ON TONIGHT

Four Solists And Chorus Of Two Hundred Voices To Present Famous Concert.

Edna Swanson Ver Haar, contralto, and Howard E. Preston, baritone, furnished a Music Festival number last night at the State Teachers College, which was quite in line with the best in music ever brought to Maryville. Both singers sang in an enjoyable manner.

Miss Ver Haar's program furnished abundant opportunity to prove her quality as an artist of unusual attainments. Her singing revealed her as a genuine dramatic contralto.

Mr. Preston has a robust bass-baritone voice which he handles with unusual skill. His top notes were outstanding and the vibrant richness of his voice was brought out with fine effect.His dramatic appreciation was well suited to his varied selections. His rousing "Pirate" by Parker was a fine exhibition.

Both of these artists will sing solo parts in Handel's "Messiah," which will be given at the College tonight. The other two soloists for the occasion are Mrs. Monica Graham Stults, soprano, and Parvin Witte, tenor. Mrs. Stults is a concert singer from Chicago, and Mr. Witte is dean of the Nebraska Wesleyan Conservatory of Music, Lincoln, Neb.

The State Teachers College chorus of 200 voices will sing in the "Messiah" tonight. Charles R. Gardner, head of the local conservatory, has been training this chorus since last September on this oratorio.

Thomas H. Annett will be accompanist tonight. Last night, following the last number on the program, Miss Ver Haar shared honors with Mr. Annett, who accompanied her and Mr. Preston. Mr. Annett received an ovation from the audience.

The program tonight:

House Will Honor "Uncle Joe" Cannon

To Celebrate Ninetieth Birthday of Famous Politician Tomorrow—Invite Him to Be Present

Washington, May 5—"Uncle Joe" Cannon, former speaker of the House, has been invited to visit his old haunts Thursday and participate in a celebration by the House of his 90th birthday.

Speaker Longworth, Representative Tilson, Connecticut, majority leader, and Representative Garrett, Tennessee, minority leader telegraphed "Uncle Joe" an invitation to be present in the house Thursday when his birthday will be commemorated with a trio of speeches.

Uncle Joe is now at his home in Danville, Ill., but it is unlikely that he will consent to make the trip here because of his advanced age.

COLLEGE HAS ITS CLEAN-UP

QUIET HALLS AND CLEAN CAMPUS IS SLOGAN

CO-OPERATION ASKED

Ray Blomfield, Student President, Urges Townspeople to Assist in Banishing Trash and Rubbish

Clean-up week is on at the State Teachers College. Posters, signs, and many words of advice are admonishing the students of the College and the people of Maryville to "help make this the cleanest campus in the world."

Ray Blomfield, student president, said today, "We want this campus to be outstanding in all ways. If it is littered with trash and papers, it cannot be so. Students throw their chewing-gum wrappers on the grass, leaves from notebooks go flying everywhere, people in cars discard candy sacks and the like on the drive.

"We want to stop this if possible. Because of that, we are asking the people of town to help the students keep the campus clean."

The clean-up activities are not limited to the campus alone. An effort is being made to keep the halls of the College building clean and quiet. One of the slogans seen at the College reads, "Quiet halls and clean campus." Another says, "Klear Klean Kampus." Still a third admonishes students to "Put your waste paper in your pockets."

At the regular College assembly this morning, tags were passed out to each student. They read, "Everybody favors quiet halls and a clean campus."

"We feel that clean-up week in Maryville would not be a success unless it included clean-up at the College," Blomfield said.

Paul Diss, New Naval Radio Operator, Here

Young Member Of Signal Corps Is Given Leave While Awaiting Call To Sea Duty.

Paul Diss, a member of the United States Navy Signal Corps, arrived in Maryville last night for a three weeks visit with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Fred Diss.

Young Diss entered the Navy on November 2 and was sent to a radio training school at San Diego, Cal., where he has been graduated as a qualified radio operator. He has been assigned to a transfer unit and is now awaiting call to sea duty.

Radio has been a hobby with Diss for five years before his enlistment. He had one of the first sets in Maryville. He was graduated from Maryville High School last spring and will be 20 years old in June. He likes his work in the Navy and has gained twenty pounds in weight.

Mr. and Mrs. Diss went to St. Joseph to meet the visitor last night. He does not have to report for duty until May 29.

Grand Lodge Officer At Meeting Tonight

W. W. Martin of Doniphan, Mo., M. W., Grand Master of the Grand Lodge, A. F. & A. M., of Missouri, arrived in Maryville today and will attend the meeting of Maryville Lodge, A. F. & A. M. 165, tonight. All Master Masons are urged to be present. A third degree will be conferred.

Miss Jeannette Tate, who recently disposed of her studio at Grant City, is visiting in Maryville with relatives and friends.

NEW METHODS BEST SOLUTION

BRITISH LABOR MUST BECOME EFFICIENT

FEAR BIG PRODUCTION

Workingmen Still Believe More Work Means Less Jobs—General Strike to Be Useless

By J. W. T. MASON
Written for the United Press.
(Copyright 1926 by United Press)

Great Britain will never settle her recurring strike crises until American methods of efficiency in production and American standards of hard work are accepted by British capital and labor.

Threats to tie up industry in the United Kingdom are signs of a revolt against low-living conditions, dangerously disquieting only because the British have not yet harmonized relations between employees and employers.

The cause of the industrial unrest of the British is symbolized by the conditions in the coal industry. It costs two to three times as much to mine coal in Great Britain as it does in the United States. Antiquated methods, limit of output imposed on the miners, working of difficult mines that ought to be abandoned and over capitalization are some of the reasons. The adoption of efficiency methods would permit the coal to be mined by scarcely more than one-half the present number of miners.

Fear New Methods

But the miners object to any new production system that might reduce their number, while private capital cannot be found to modernize the mines, through fear of the government eventually taking over the coal fields on a low capital valuation. Employers and employes are both backing away from efficiency in production.

The American spirit of capital and labor coming together, each realizing its dependence on the other and each working for a fair division of profits is little known in Great Britain. High wages are not begrudged an American working man if he is a good producer. But old fashioned class ideas still prevail in British industry, and employers in many instances believe low wages are a good thing and workingmen should be content with their humble lot.

British working men tend to encourage that idea, for if they can make enough by three days labor per week to support themselves, large numbers of them want to make the rest of the week a holiday.

Fear Big Production

The American spirit of earning more by steady production under constantly improving conditions has not won its way in Great Britain. Nevertheless, there are signs that the British are beginning to realize that the New World holds the secret of their economic salvation. Numerous investigations into the reasons for high wages and the high standard of living of American workers have been made by Britishers in the last twelve months and are still continuing. How the investigators must apply their findings to Great Britain's own peculiar conditions is part of her problem.

General Strike Useless

General strikes will get the British working man nowhere because wages cannot be raised progressively without progressive increases in production. General strikes, being against public welfare, may be checked eventually by the use of the injunction. But that is no answer either. Until British capital and labor co-operate as partners, employers working as hard as employees to stimulate production, there will be crisis after crisis, each leaving discontent behind. The only way for Great Britain to divide her property and yet keep everybody prosperous is the American way of increasing production per man.

Bungalow Begun On West Third Street

Mr. and Mrs. Roy Schrader have begun construction of a five-room, modern frame bungalow at 310 West Thihrd street, on a lot which they purchased from Carrie E. and Joe Maxey of Grundy County.

A small house which formerly occupied the site has been torn down and the basement for the new house has been excavated.

Holds Freight Rates On Livestock Are O. K.

On Shipments West of Missouri and in Southwest to Non-Marketing Points Charges Upheld

Washington, May 5—The interstate commerce commission today held that freight rates on livestock shipped from points in the territory west of the Missouri River and including Kansas, Arkansas, Texas and extreme western Oklahoma and Louisiana to destinations in that territory other than recognized livestock marketing points were not unreasonable and unduly prejudicial.

The present rates were attacked by the American Livestock Association and the National Wool Growers Association.

NEED 40,000 FOR HARVEST

WORK TO START IN SOUTHERN KANSAS ABOUT JUNE 15

RECRUITING WORKMEN

Chicago, St. Louis and Kansas City Are Central Points for Securing Wheat Harvesters

Topeka, Kan., May 5—The federal and state employment bureaus here estimate that Kansas will require forty thousand extra workmen for the wheat harvest which will begin in the extreme southern counties by June 15.

John H. Crawford, director of the federal and state labor department offices here, is negotiating with railroads for transportation of the army of harvesters from other states. Chicago, St. Louis and Kansas City are central points for the employment of men to be conveyed to the Kansas fields.

Practically every state in the union is represented in the army that annually goes to the fields. Several hundred college students from far eastern states make the trip every season and follow the ripening grain from Oklahoma and Texas into the Dakotas and Canada. It is estimated that about 6,000 men will come into Kansas from the South when the harvest begins.

The wages this year will be $4 a day with board. The price was fixed several years ago by the Kansas Legislature.

Watson Victorious In Indiana Primary

Present Senator Wins Over Opponent By Approximately 150,000—Democrats to Nominate in Convention.

Indianapolis, May 5.—Indiana's incumbent United States Senators, both Republicans, were indorsed by their party and selected as candidates for return to the Senate at yesterday's state-wide primary.

Senator James Watson was victorious by a majority that is expected to reach 150,000 over his opponent, Claris Adams. Arthur Robinson, appointed by Governor Jackson to occupy the Senate seat of the late Samuel M. Ralston until an election could be held, defeated four other candidates for the short two-year term.

Four of the six candidates for the Democratic nomination were so closely grouped together that a majoriey for one candidate appeared impossible and the nomination will be decided in a party convention.

All of the thirteen incumbent Representatives were renominated on the face of returns today.

CHAOS STILL GRIPS BRITAIN

GENERAL STRIKE CONTINUES TO PARALYZE NATION

RIOTERS IN TURMOIL

Many Disorders Reported — British Shipping Menaced as Workers Are Called Out

London, May 5—Nightfall at the end of the second day of Great Britain's general strike finds the nation still in chaos.

No signs of peace are evident and both sides are apparently preparing for a finish fight.

The government has asked parliament for an approval of the state of emergency for a period of a month. Lord Birkenhead declared in the House of Lords that there will be no resumption of negotiations until the general strike is called off.

Ugly disorders have been reported from widespread centers throughout the country. Naval vessels, troops and police reserves are stationed at strategic points.

Incendiarism has been reported in London.

Numerous train wrecks have occurred due to the lack of signals and the inexperience of the voluntary crews. Food supplies are rotting on the London docks. Firemen and seamen are under orders to come out on a strike.

The electrical power is only one-third of normal and London is poorly illuminated.

London, May 5—The British government cannot yield to the general strike.

Premier Baldwin made this definitely plain in the House of Commons this afternoon in a dramatic response to pleas from Lloyd George and others that the government resume negotiations with the strikers.

"We can never yield to the general strike," Baldwin said. "I am prepared to resume negotiations only if the general strike is called off unconditionally.

Hints at Defeat.

London, May 5.—The first admission of possible defeat for the strikers was made in the House of Commons this afternoon by John Bromley, member of the Trades Union Council.

"I will admit that if the full resources of the government are brought to bear against us, we are bound eventually to be defeated but we won't go down without a struggle," Bromley said. "Labor may be beaten but it won't be next week or a week after."

London, May 5.—What were probably the most serious disorders since the general strike started occurred in Hammersmith tonight. Strikers parading Hammersmith's Broadway held up bus drivers, drove them from their seats and smashed motor engines.

Fifty arrests were made. Hammersmith, in northwest London, is the shopping center for the working classes.

Strike Brings Drough.

London, May 5.—The general strike will extend to the Englishmen's drink tonight, it was reported. The government is understood to have prepared an order for the closing of all public houses after tonight.

This will be a severe blow to the workingmen, many of whom consider beer a part of their daily diet.

London, May 5.—The general strike is not breaking down; it is not even cracking, Tom Shaw, former minister of labor in the MacDonald cabinet, declared this afternoon.

"Reports which are circulating in the United States that the strike is breaking down are baseless," Shaw said. "Our greatest difficulty is to keep the strike from spreading to an undesirable extent. We are finding it difficult to keep men who have not been called out at their work."

Second Day Cheerless.

London, May 5.—The second day of the British general strike found gloom prevailing. With London fog swept and a downpour of rain threatening,

THE ONLY DAILY PAPER IN NODAWAY COUNTY

THE MOROCCAN RUNNER

They have great men in Morocco. All the world thrills at the account of the Riffian soldier who ran 70 miles in one night, carrying a dispatch from Abd-el-Krim, in the Atlas hills, to the Riff peace commissioners at Oujda.

The message, too, was worthy of the man who carried it as well as the man who sent it. "No peace without autonomy," it said.

That terrific run was made by a man 67 years old. Hamouch ben Hadge should live in Moroccan history as no less a personage than the Greek who brought to Athens the news of Miltiades' victory at Marathon over 2,000 years ago. The distance covered was three times the Marathon distance. The elderly Moraccan, however, did not expire as he delivered his message, like the historic Greek youth. After breakfast, he seemed fresh enough to run back to his mountains.

It is easier to understand, after that, why a battle band of Riffians held out against the combined power of Spain and France.

MAINTENANCE IS THE THING

The Montgomery, Ala., Advertiser preaches a little sermon to its state on the text: "There is no such thing as a permanent highway never has been, never will be, probably."

It elaborates the theme by declaring that the soundest of roads will give way under such terrific wear as modern transportation forces on them. The old Roman roads were good, but they have to be kept up and are frequently resurfaced.

The Advertiser isn't out advocating poor roads. Far from it. It wants the best sort of roads constructed through Alabama. But it also wants such roads maintained. There is little use putting large sums of money into new road construction if the highways are subsequently neglected. The importance of maintenance is too often overlooked.

SCRAMBLING THE ETHER.

Laws are laws, and courts are courts, and presumably a federel court knows what it is doing when it knocks out Secretary Hoover's authority over radio broadcasting. But it is unfortunate. That decision brings confusion in the ether and may render worthless half a billion dollars' worth of receiving sets.

It was generally recognized, by Secretary Hoover and others, that his authority was unofficial, and based on the tacit consent of the radio interests affected. His supervision was regarded as benefitting the industry as a whole and tolerated for that reason. Its actual benefits are generally considered very great. But a test case forced by a Chicago broadcaster who ignored the established wave-length division, and butted in on a wave reserved for communication between the United States and Canada, spilled the radio beans. Now any other troublemaker may follow that example and grab off whatever wave or hour he likes.

Perhaps it is just as well that this wrench has been thrown into the radio machinery. The courts follow the laws. If Congress gets busy now and enacts legislation establishing federal authority over broadcasting, as it should have done before, chaos in the air may be prevented and enormous radio interests safeguarded.

THE AMERICAN RIVIERA.

Just before leaving for Europe where he conducts summer classes in art, an authority on old world charm and loveliness surprised an interviewer with this statement:

"The Florida coast and the Gulf region will become more popular with American tourists in the next ten years than the Mediterranean Riviera."

He did not give his reasons, but anyone is free to think up a few for himself. In the first place that section of America is just beginning to come into its own. Development is going forward there, advertising is being undertaken. The new accessibility of such a charming region is bound to attract tourists as fast as they learn of its existence.

Perhaps, too, the gouging propensities of foreign hotel keepers and merchants is having its effect in interesting American travellers in the possibilities of their own fair land.

Again, the "See America First" slogan has at least called attention to the fact that America really is worth seeing at one time or another—if not "first," then second or third. There has been such heavy travel to Europe from the United States in recent years, that it is only natural for many of those jaunters to turn in another direction as soon as the way is shown.

PERFECT HIGHWAYS COMING.

"Can you vision," asks a newspaper man who has been studying road problems, "the thousands of miles of the state highway system not only paved adequately from end to end, but lighted as well at night as a city thoroughfare? Can you vision, between all the industrial centers, roads not merely paved and lighted but especially designed for industrial as well as passenger traffic?

"Can you vision, super-imposed on the present primary and secondary highway system a special class of super-highways, limited in number, but far superior to anything yet dreamed of in any state? Broad, straight thoroughfares, built and maintained as carefully as any transcontinental railroad, with steep hills and curves minimized and grade crossings eliminated, and paved for keeps to handle any kind of traffic?"

This, he says, is what his state and every other state is going to have sooner or later. He has for it the word of far-sighted engineers. It is something for every forward-looking citizen to anticipate, and to help along in its successive stages. The dream may be realized sooner than most of us think.

David M. Proctor of Kansas City announced Saturday his candidacy for the Republican nomination for United States Senator as a dry candidate. Wayne Ely of St. Louis, formerly assistant United States district attorney in that city and more recently a law partner of Congressman Harry B. Hawes, said Saturday he had virtually decided to file for the Democratic nomination for United States Senator against Hawes.

The world was told a while ago that Herrin, Ill., had got religion; but apparently it didn't take.

The situation in Chicago shows that federal deportation of undesirables stopped entirely too soon.

Political retribution is more effective in France than anywhere else in the world. Every time a government does anything it's fired.

Some time we hope to see a statue erected to some statesman not for licking any other country, but for turning foreign enemies into friends.

Young Cornelius Vanderbilt has been having a fine time starting new papers and, with the magic of the Vanderbilt name, has been able to sell a great deal of stock in his three enterprises. He was enjoying himself so much that, instead of waiting until he found whether he could make one pay, he went right on and established three. It didn't matter so long as money was coming regularly from Dad and the new stockholders, but, after getting a million and a half dollars into the game, Dad has quit writing checks and the Dickens is to pay. Of course the young man thinks, with more money, the papers would some time begin to pay out but Dad is hard-headed about such things and sticks to the old idea that a dollar in the bank is worth two in prospect.

Summer White House Will Be Chosen Soon

Real Estate Agents Boost Prices to Such Extent That Coolidge Will Make Selection Immediately

Washington, May 5—Exploitation by unscrupulous real estate agents for proposed "summer White Houses" is forcing President Coolidge to make an immediate choice for a site for his vacation.

Some discussion of the summer White House began several months ago, the President has learned that numerous invitation extended to him were not made in good faith but only to boost land values in certain territory.

He has therefore decided to end this practice by selection his summer house immediately. Frank W. Stearns, the president's intimate friend, is quietly investigating the proposed sites. He is expected to return today to make his report to the president. The preferred sites will then be investigated further by secret service agents.

The most striking case of padding land values by bidding for the president was the case of a New England realty firm that raised the rent on the proposed house 25 per cent three days after extending the invitation to President Coolidge.

Reed Without Peer as Obstructionist

Missouri Senator In Class By Himself When It Comes To Blocking Proposal—Dynamic Personality.

BY CHARLES P. STEWART.
NEA Service Writer.

Washington—"I desire to say nothing unpleasant."

Thus Senator Jim Reed of Missouri, getting up from his seat in the hall of the solons, one day recently, to discuss the government's bargain with Mussolini concerning the Italian war debt.

He hardly got what he desired. Or else he has a funny idea of what isn't unpleasant. Most people probably would so interpret such a remark as, "This is altogether the biggest steal in history."

It's difficult to get any very pleasant meaning out of an adjective like "infamous." It was one of a number applied by Reed to that debt agreement, and not the worst one, either.

* * *

However, Reed may have considered that, for him, he wasn't saying anything especially unpleasant—not in comparison with other speeches he's made.

When Jim Reed objects to a proposition—and he objects to all of 'em—what he does to it is a plenty. I doubt if he could put up much of a fight in favor of anything. He's a regular whirlwind of a scrapper, but so far as I've ever observed, it's always as an obstructionist or a destructionist.

I don't believe he could work up enough interest in a constructive program to campaign effectively for it.

* * *

Some chronic "antis" get tiresome. Reed never does. He's a formidable figure and commands respect. He's the real article in the matter of ability. He's tremendously dynamic—fairly effervesces personality.

And his nerve is boundless.

Politicians Hold Anxious Eye on West.

By Paul R. Mallon

Washington, May 5—Political seismographs in Washington are recording disquieting tremors in the west of sufficient importance to cause nervousness here.

First the pen dropped off the chart when the Iowa Farm Conference several weeks ago shook the corn stalks and demanded immediate, comprehensive and satisfying farm relief.

Then the political outpost brought in news of lesser importance that the Iowa situation was but a little more concentrated view of the situation in many mid-western states.

More recently Senator William B. McKinley, administration Republican, Illinois, member of the Senate Agriculture Committee, author of Muscle Shoals farm legislation and student of farm problems, was defeated in the Republican senatorial primaries in Illinois by Frank L. Smith, an anti-world court man. That again smashed the pen of the chart.

P. H. Callahan, Democratic leader of Louisville, Ky., a state in which Senator Ernst, Republican, must seek reelection in November, told a senate committee later that the farmers in his state were in about the same condition as Iowa.

The western representatives in both houses of Congress have served notice that unless satisfactory farm relief legislation is adopted they will oppose the scheduled June adjournment of Congress.

These things and others are causing deep concern among political leaders. They are at a loss to interpret the Mckinley defeat in Illinois, or rather they interpret it so many different ways that they can't agree on the real reason. More primaries are coming—more in the west.

The old boom for George L. Berry, president of the International Printing Pressmens' Union, for the Democratic vice presidential nomination is being revived. At a dinner given in his honor here recently the subject of his candidacy was mentioned and speakers openly urged his selection for the office.

More votes were cast for Senator Charles S. Deneen, Republican, Illinois, than for any other man in the senate according to statistics compiled by officials of that body. He received 1,448,180 votes in his race. Senator Royal S. Copeland, Democrat, New York, is next with 1,276,667; James R. Couzens, Republican, Michigan, third, with 858,934; Walter E. Edge, Republican, New Jersey, fourth, with 608,020; Morris Sheppard, Democrat, Texas, fifth, with 591,913, and Frederick H. Gillett, Republican, Massachusetts, sixth with 566,188.

After scrubbing the front porch put out a "smallpox" sign so people won't track it all up.

Program on Drills

Mrs. E. F. Hamlin was hostess to the Mutual Improvement Circle at the regular meeting yesterday afternoon at her home on East Sixth street. The program was on drills. The devotions were in charge of the hostess, and in answer to roll call the members gave current events. The remainder of the afternoon was devoted to a parliamentary drill, conducted by Mrs. Vada Hailey. Guests at the meeting were Mrs. George C. Butts and Miss Isabel Hamlin. The meeting will be held May 18 at the home of Mrs. Floyd Ambrose near Bedison.

Missionary Meeting

"Foreign Missions in the Homeland" was the subject discussed at the May meeting of the Woman's Missionary Society of the M. E. Church, South, yesterday afternoon. Mrs. R. A. Mitchell was hostess at the parsonage on West Second street. The meeting opened with singing of "In Christ There is no East nor West." The monthly reports of the officers were followed by the devotions, led by Mrs. M. E. Farrar. There was a general discussion of how the members could do missionary work by assisting the local welfare board. A report was given by Mrs. W. T. Gray, the delegate to the annual conference of Women's Missionary Societies of the Missouri conference at Moberly. The local department of the Missionary Society will give a market on May 29, it was announced.

Deputy Commissioner To Liquidate Bank

Depositors Are Not Expected To Lose By Closing of Commercial Bank At Lawson.

Lawson, Mo., May 5.—Residents of this county are today awaiting the arrival of a deputy state bank commissioner to take charge of the Commercial Bank of Lawson, closed yesterday as a result of the action by the board of directors.

This action, according to S. Y. Griffith, is merely that of liquidation necessitated by decline of earnings. Directors said there would be no loss to depositors.

To Take Up Traffic Conditions At Meet

Two-Day Conference to be Held in Jefferson City, May 10 and 11 To Discuss Problem.

Jefferson City, Mo., May 5.—In an effort to focus public attention on the appalling increase in street and highway accidents, and also to develop a comprehensive program for improvement of traffic conditions, a program for a statewide safety conference, called by Gov. Sam A. Baker, to be held here May 10 and 11 was announced today by theorganization committee of the Missouri Street and Highway Safety Conference.

Invitations have been issued by the organization committee to all citizens interested in the state's traffic problem to attend the two-day conference. City, fire and police officials especially are urged to attend.

During the two day conference aside from the listed speakers the meeting will be open for general discussion of a uniform traffic code, a unified system of enforcement to be applied to all parts of the state and various other phases of the traffic problem such as necessary patrol, education in safety and accident prevention by including study of safety methods in the elementary school courses.

John McLang, former state senator of Joplin, has been selected to preside at the conference. Speakers on the program include Governor Baker; Ernest Greenwood, secretary of the National Conference on Street and Highway Safety, Washington, D. C., who will discuss the value of national uniformity in highway regulations; Dr. James Stewart, secretary of the Missouri State Board of Health, on the qualification of a Safe Driver; Robert E. Lee, president of the St. Louis Safety Council; E. H. Piepmeier, Missouri State Highway Department, and Oak Hunter, member of the house of representatives.

The organization committee is composed of Roye B. Hinkle, state labor commissioner, chairman; Julian Harvey, director of Kansas City Safety Council as secretary and Everett C. Wilson, and Ray W. Wilson, of the Kansas City Chamber of Commerce; William J. Welsh, Frank J. Dean, W. A. Osgood, president of the Automobile Club, W. I. Tuly, and Emil W. Koch, police commissioner, all of Kansas City; Robert E. Lee, president of safety council, Matt F. Morse, secretary of the Automobile Club of Missouri, N. R. Northrup, Girard Varnum, all of St. Louis; Oscar G. Steininger, Col. Paul O. Hunt, Clyde Manse and A. A. Speer, of Jefferson City.

After the meeting, the members went to the Roach Cafe where refreshments were served.

Report Shows Bank Banditry Decreasing

Vigilance Campaigns Against Robbers Especially In Middle West, Result In Fewer Crimes.

Pinehurst, N. C., May 5.—Bank banditry in the United States has shown a sudden drop mainly due to hard-hitting vigilance campaigns against criminals conducted by bankers in Iowa, Illinois, Indiana, Kansas and Oklahoma, which are among the states where crime activities have been most violent, James E. Baum, manager of the Protective Department of the American Bankers Association, says in his report to the committee on bank crime prevention and investigation made public at the organization's Executive Council meeting here today.

"The six months ended February 28 witnessed the sharpest reduction in criminal attacks against member banks in the history of the Protective Department," Baum says. "Crime of violence were cut to less than half of those reported last year, with daylight robberies from 86 to 53 and 14 burglaries reported against 49 last year, a reduction of 70 per cent. With forgeries also reduced the advance of banking in coping with criminals is more rapid this year than at any time since 1919 when the present wave of crime began its sweep across the country.

"Since 1924 the Committee has stressed the fact that two-thirds of all bank crimes of violence were directed against banks in but eight states, California, Illinois, Indiana, Kansas, Michigan, Missouri, Oklahoma and Texas. Last year the bankers in Illinois, Indiana, Kansas and Oklahoma accepted this challenge from the underworld and began a vigorous and remarkably successful campaign of vigilante organization, following the lead of the Iowa Bankers Association, to combat the bank robber and his menacing advantage in surprise attack. The success of these campaigns is best illustrated by the results, which show that 80 per cent of the reduction in bank crimes of violence throughout the country is accounted for in the four states named and Iowa where the present vigilante plan originated. The results show that curbing crime rests largely upon the will of the people to stamp it out.

"During the period under report, Protective Department services, which are available to all members of the American Bankers Association under regulations designed to encourage the prevention of crime as contrasted to the slower, costlier and more doubtful results of detection, caused the arrest of 152 criminals, 61 of whom are already convicted and imprisoned."

Want a "Genuine" Stradivarius Cheap? Cape Girardeau Man Offers His for $25

From the Cape Girardeau Southeast Missourian.

Some time ago The Missourian published an Associated Press dispatch concerning the discovery of a genuine Stradivarious violin valued at $10,000, at Urbana, Ill. Since its publication several people have brought in violins with labels like the one described in the article. Several others have written that they own instruments with such labels.

If all the instruments credited to him were genuine, Stradivarius must have crowded the work of several centuries into the 42 years during which he made violins with his own label in them. Up to the time he was 29 years old, all the instruments he made contained the label of the Amati, under whom he served his apprenticeship. Only after he ended that long apprenticeship did he place his own labels in the instruments he made.

Hill Brothers of London, leading violin dealers of Europe, fix the number of instruments made by Stradivarius at 1100, and of that number 560 were violas and violin-cellos. Most of his instruments were made in groups specifically for certain orchestras, as for a court of theater orchestra. As a result, most of them were kept together, and all but a possible 100 have been accounted for.

Others Use Label.

Stradivarius became so famous among violin makers that others began to use his label, and to imitate his measurements. For more than 200 year this practice has continued, and today Hill Brothers estimate that a violin with a Stradivarius label has about one chance in a million of being genuine.

However, the real value of a violin is determined mostly by tone, no matter wheather it was made 200 years ago by Stradivarius or last year by some less famous American maker. Stradivarius made a remarkable number of instruments of the finest quality, but the greater number of them have been used so continuously since that time that many have lost their brilliance and resilience of tone. Some are no better than modern violins, according to an article in "The Etude," for February, 1925.

Want to Buy?

Anyone desiring to purchase a genuine Strad-labeled violin should call at The Missourian office. There is one on display that shows plainly the marks of great ago. A two-piece maple back, an exceptionally beautiful scroll and a fine spruce top combine to make an instrument of unusual beauty. It is a genuine Strad, made by old Strad himself—the label says so. The label reads: "Antonius Stradivarius Cremonensis faciebat Anno 1713."

The instrument is the property of John O'Donoghue, conductor of the New Broadway orchestra. He has been prevailed upon to part with the violin, and anyone who is interested will be surprised to find that a low price of $25 will move the instrument O'Donoghue, not being as mercenary as the neighbors across the river, will be satisfied with a price much lower than the $10,000 wanted for the Urbana instrument.

A Myrtle Tree Oil Meeting Is Called

The Rev. W. H. Yount, Former Geologist, To Report Findings Next Tuesday Night at Highland School.

A meeting of those interested in the proposed test oil well in the Myrtle Tree community, northeast of Maryville will be held next Tuesday evening at 8 o'clock at Highland school house. The Rev. W. H. Yount of Barnard, who was formerly a geologist and who has been over this section of the country, will report his findings at that meeting.

The purpose of the meeting is to form an organization and to make plans for some test wells in the district, which extends north from the state road to a point about two miles north of Myrtle Tree school house. If the roads are bad next Tuesday evening or it should rain, the meeting will be held the next evening.

State Has No Law Against Drunkenness

State Officers Cannot Arrest and Search But City Officers Can, Attorney-General Rules.

Jefferson City, May 5.—The Missouri Legislature has never made drunkenness a crime, according to an opinion of North T. Gentry, attorney-general, to the prosecuting attorney of Henry County today.

The attorney-general held that a drunk man cannot be searched without a search warrant except when he is disturbing the peace or committing some other crime.

However, a drunk man can be searched without a warrant in cities and towns which have ordinances against drunkenness.

Motorist Held Who Struck Down Boy

Hit and Run Driver of Braddyville, Ia., Hurts St. Joseph Boy.

(St. Joseph Gazette).

A man said to be C. Williams, 28, Braddyville, Iowa, is being held at Savannah, Mo., as the hit-and-run driver of the motor car that struck and injured William Johnson, 16, Industrial City, in the 3300 block on St. Joseph avenue about 9 o'clock Tuesday night.

Johnson, riding a bicycle north on the avenue, was struck from behind by a speeding motor car and hurled many feet. He received a serious scalp wound and severe bruises.

The driver of the motor car did not stop, but increased his speed. Bystanders, however, obtained the numbers of the license plate. Pearl Russell, 1324 North Fourth street, a witness to the accident, followed in his motor car after asking Charles Baker, attendant at the Central Oil company's filling station at Industrial City to notify authorities in Savannah, towards which place the automobile was headed.

The man who gave his name as Williams, was arrested by Deputy Sheriff Bryan at Savannah. He was driving a Chevrolet touring car with an Iowa license. He was accompanied by a mixed party of men and women. According to authorities at Savannah, he was intoxicated when arrested.

Police, investigating the accident, found that the numbers of the license plate obtained by witnesses correspond to those of the motor car of the man arrested by the Andrew county deputy sheriff, and obtained a John Doe warrant charging failure to report an accident. They will bring the man to St. Joseph today.

C. J. Lask, an employe of the St. Joseph Gas company, putting lanterns over gas line ditches nearby was a witness to the accident. He said the motor car was moving rapidly when it struck the boy on the bicycle. The boy was hurled over the top, he said. Lask took Johnson to central police station where Dr. Forrest Thomas, police physician, treated him. Johnson's condition is not serious.

Maryville Hi-Y Club Graduates 15 Boys

Fifteen boys, members of the advanced senior class of the Maryville High School, were graduated this morning from the Hi-Y Club, of which they have been active members. The ceremony took place before the Hi-Y Club. All of the ministers of the town and Dr. Fred Keller of the State Teachers College participated.

Each of the graduates was awarded a diploma, signed by officers and the board of advisors which signifies membership in graduation from the organization, which is affiliated with the Secondary School Boys Christian Movement of North America through the Young Men's Christian Association of the State of Missouri.

The boys graduated are: John Craig, William Spoor, Carl King, Cameron Yeary, Harold Braun, Kermit Moore, Kenneth Evans, Frank Tindall, Ralph Hotchkin, Eldon Collins, Ralph Curfman, Donald Goforth, Willis Wamsley, Robert Porter and Harold Lee Yates.

The order of service follows:

President presiding.

Song, "I Need Thee Every Hour."

Invocation, Dr. C. C. James.

Scripture, The Rev. R. E. Musgrave.

Vocal solo, The Rev. R. A. Mitchell, accompanied at piano by Mrs. Mitchell.

Address, Dr. Fred Keller.

Presentation of New Testaments, The Rev. William N. Dewar.

Awarding of diplomas, L. L. St. Clair.

Benediction, the Rev. Guy L. Prather.

The awarding of new testaments was in keeping with an established custom of the organization. The Reverend Mr. Dewar, in making the presentations, stressed the value of the New Testament and told the members that the Book should be a daily companion and all its contents revered.

A Bible was presented by Lawrence Wray, on behalf of the club, to Mr. St. Clair in appreciation of the services that he has rendered to the club through his two years of sponsorship.

Dr. Keller in his address pointed out that Christianity was both believable and livable.

This is the second time that the Hi-Y Club has held graduation for its outgoing members by their graduation from high school. The first time was in January when eight boys were graduated. The Maryville High School is the first one in the state where such an organization conducts a graduation. The state committee reports that one of the St. Louis schools is now practicing this form of Hi-Y graduation.

CIVIL AVIATION IN U. S. LAGS

DEVELOPED MUCH MORE RAPIDLY ABROAD.

NO AIR SUBSIDIES

But Bankers Assn. Executive Council Recommends Department Of Civil Aeronautics to Foster Development.

Pinehurst, N. C., May 5—Government inaction in the United States has resulted in civil aviation developing much more rapidly abroad than in this country, except as to mail service, it is pointed out today in a report of the Commerce and Marine Commission of the American Bankers Association prepared for submission to the organization's Executive Council meeting here. No demand exists in the United States for government air subsidies, the report says, but it recommends a Department of Commerce Bureau of Civil Aeronautics to provide for legal status and control of civil aviation and foster airway facilities as is now done for waterways.

"As far as the Federal government is concerned, civil aviation is neither 'fish nor fowl nor bright red herring,'" the report says. "It has no legal status or organized control. Although the United States has the honor of having given the airplane to the world, yet civil aviation has developed much more rapidly abroad than at home. Interest in foreign countries has caused the enactment of basic laws aimed at protection of passengers and responsible operators from unsafe machines and incompetent pilots and the establishment of government departments to provide and maintain at public expense landing fields, airways, beacons and other facilities. Substantial cash subsidies have in many countries been granted.

"Materials and passengers transported in air routes for the years 1920 through 1924 are not large in comparison with other transportation. The significance, however, is in the rapid percentage of growth. In Europe the number of miles flown over regular routes had in 1924 increased by 380 per cent over 1920. The number of pounds of mail carried increased over 3,000 per cent, the number of passengers by 590 per cent.

"In the United States, outside of the mail service, civil aviation has been largely confined to the itinerant aviator giving exhibitions and carrying passengers on 'joy rides,' and operators who developed various types of service, such as aerial photography, 'cotton dusting,' timber cruising and forest patrol. Since May 1925, the Ford Motor Company has been operating a daily express service between Detroit and Chicago, and since July, 1925, between Detroit and Cleveland. Until August 1, 1925, the Ford Airplanes had flown over 51,000 miles and carried over 200,000 pounds of material."

Exposition Began at St. Louis 22 Years Ago April 30

Twenty-two years ago Friday was the opening day of the Louisiana Purchase Exposition, which was held in St. Louis in 1904 for the celebration of the centennial birthday of the Louisiana purchase, according to Floyd C. Shoemaker, Secretary of the State Historical Society of Missouri.

At time of the purchase, St. Louis was but a little town. From 1830 on, it had grown rapidly up to 1870, when the census showed that in population it ranked fourth in the Union. But in 1880, it was on the verge of going backward. In order to overcome this retrogression, an attempt was made in 1889 by Gov. David R. Francis and a few other leaders to obtain for St. Louis the Columbia Exposition which was to be celebrated in 1892. But it was failed and Chicago was chosen.

Being the metropolis of Missouri and the center of what was the Louisiana territory, St. Louis was finally chosen for the site of the Louisiana Purchase Exposition. In 1899, a definite step toward the celebration was taken in the effecting of the Louisiana Exposition Company of which Gov. Francis was president. By the support of St. Louis and Missourians the celebration was a great success. At the opening April 30, people from all over the world were present. The beauty and magnitude of the celebration won universal admiration.

Conditions Favorable Bank's Report Says

Despite Unfavorable Weather Conditions, Outlook In Mississippi Valley Bright, According to Survey.

St. Louis, Mo., May 5—Despite unfavorable weather conditions which hampered the progress of farming and manufacturing and curtailed the movement of spring merchandise, conditions in general were in the main favorable, the Federal Bank of St. Louis announced here yesterday.

"While the season is too far advanced to permit retrieving of the loss in apparel, dry goods and certain other products for common consumption caused by delayed distribution it is still possible to offset losses in other lines. This is particularly true of farm implements, dairy and poultry supplies, hardware, fencing materials and other goods consumed chiefly in the country," the report said.

In a majority of the lines investigated the volume of sales compared favorably with the corresponding period last year, and in a number of important industries good gains were shown. Production as a whole was well maintained and distribution continued at the recent high levels.

"The trend of prices was again downward but with few exceptions changes were less marked, and in several important classifications greater stability was noted than at any time since last fall.

"Demand for domestic coal was stimulated to some extent by the unusual cold weather which extended through March and the first days of April. Dealers, however, were able largely to take care of these requirements from their yard stocks, and resultant orders at mines were hardly large enough to absorb loaded cars on tracks. During the past two weeks many important contracts have been signed by industrial consumers, and buying by the railroads has been on a larger scale than heretofore.

"According to officials of railroads operating in the district, freight traffic continues at levels above the seasonal average of recent years. The St. Louis Terminal Railroad Association, which handles interchanges for 23 connecting lines, interchanged 239,999 loads in March, against 205,013 loads in February and 214,567 loads in March, 1925.

HARRY MORTON, attractive to women, middle-aged, wealthy, unmarried, maintains a home in Springfield and an apartment in Kansas City. His adopted daughter, AUDREY, loves him. So does NONA, a Kansas City stage girl.

To learn how stage girls manage to attract Morton, Audrey hires a male dancing partner, who tries to extort $1000 from her. Morton confronts the man, who is called "Joe" and drives him away. Nona accepts Morton's proposal that she leave the show for which she is rehearsing, and be Audrey's dancing partner. With Morton and JOHN PARRISH, Morton's secretary (who is in love with Audrey) they go to a Russian tea room. Nona calls attention to the people at another table.

Morton touched her on the arm, and again addressed the girl.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

CHAPTER XXX

A moment or two later, Nona said: "Look now! Quick!"

Audrey looked, in the direction that Nona indicated. She saw a fat, heavy-faced man, sitting with a thin girl, who was lighting a cigaret.

"Who are they?" Audrey said, turning back to Nona. "I never saw them before."

"Why," Nona said, "I thought you met that girl! Anyhow, she's the girl from whom Joe gets his money. Joe's the fellow who tried to hold you up for a thousand dollars."

With a sharp exclamation, Audrey turned and looked again. This time, the other girl's eyes were fixed on her, and there was a glint in them that was not to be mistaken. Audrey shivered.

"I believe that girl would stab me!" she gasped. "But how does she know who I am?"

Morton had been watching the little drama. "Not so hard to guess," he said. You are with me and with Nona. She knows us, and she has found out from Joe that I am your guardian. It's like adding two and two."

Nona was arising. "Wait here a minute," she said.

She walked to where the girl and fat man were sitting, and in a moment was leaning over their table. The girl looked up at her, in cold hostility. Nona began a rapid speech, motioning toward Morton's table. The girl shook her head. Nona stooped down and whispered to her. The fat man, after a moment's attempt to listen, philosophically poured himself a glass of liquor, and gulped it, with an emphatic smack of his lips.

Evidently Nona gained her point. With a few words of excuse to the portly man, the girl arose and followed Nona to Morton's table. Parrish arose, and offered his chair. The girl refused it.

"Nona says you've got some explanations to make, and I want them!" the girl said. "I'm willing to listen to what you have to say."

"She's coo-coo," Nona confided to her companions, "but I brought her over anyway. Sit down!"

She pushed the girl into the chair, and herself sat down alongside. "She has the idea that Audrey is trying to take her Joe away from her!" she explained.

Parrish, who had brought another chair for himself, let out a quick exclamation. "That is an absolute outrage," he said.

"Keep quiet, Parrish," Morton ordered. Turning to the girl he went on: "Did this young man of yours tell you that he had tried to extort a thousand dollars from Miss Morton?"

"It's a lie!" the girl cried. "She just tried to frame him! He wouldn't fall for her, and she was trying to get even!"

Audrey was crushed. She buried her face in her open hands, and moaned: "This is terrible! It's awful!"

Morton touched her on the arm, and again addressed the girl.

"I see your point of view better than Miss Morton does, or Parrish here. No doubt Nona understands, though. You are very fond of this man, and believe that other women want him. You let him have your money, because you are attached to him, and want to believe what he says. Anybody that does anything against him, is your enemy, too. Is that right?"

"You said something!" the girl returned. Her hostile eyes still were inspecting Audrey.

"I think you will agree," Morton continued, "that I have been pretty good to you in a way."

"Good!" There was a bitter sneer on the girl's lips. "You pretended to be getting me a good job, in the show, because you were sorry for me! But I know! You were trying to get square with me for what happened in Nona's apartment ,that time. You wanted to separate me from Joe, so this girl here could have him!" She pointed at Audrey.

Morton sighed, and shook his head. "It's hopeless, I suppose," he said. "You are so infatuated with this young fellow, that you twist everything to suit what he says. We'll make a fresh start on this."

He leaned over, with his face close to hers, and tapped slowly on the table to emphasize his words.

"If you do anything to disturb Miss Morton, here, in any way, this man Joe of yours goes to jail."

The girl pushed back her chair with a jerk. "You wouldn't do that!"

"Certainly," Morton said. "He ought to be in jail anyway. But I'm simply giving you this warning—don't molest Miss Morton. You'd better go, now."

The girl arose, and, agitatted, returned to her own table. The fat man greeted her indifferently, as she sat down beside him.

"The female of the species is more deadly than the male," Nona quoted. "Aren't girls crazy?"

"Poor little thing!" Moton said thoughtfully. "That fellow misuses her, and robs her, and still she loves him! But if I hadn't made a threat against her young man's safety, I think she would have attacked Audrey at the first chance. Heaven knows what she WOULD have done!"

Parrish, since Morton had adjured him to be quiet, had been restlessly moving his plate and silverware about, on the cloth before him. Now he spoke again. "We had no business to bring Miss Morton to a place like this!"

"My dear boy," Morton said, wearily, "we are going to meet people, no matter where we go. We can't wrap ourselves, or our daughtersor our secretaries—in cotton-wool, and expect to protect them that way from the world. Our only real protection is our own common sense."

"I would like to go away from here, though," said Audrey. "That girl over there, and the man with her, keep looking at me. Who do you suppose he is?"

"Oh, some mutt from out of town," Nona surmised. "She's being hostess this evening. He'll probably give her twenty dollars, for going out to dinner with him, and dancing with him afterwards."

Morton paid for the tea that they had consumed, and told the waiter they would not want the borsch that he was placing before them.

"Let's go to a theater, and find something to laugh about," Morton proposed, as his party filed up to the street level from the restaurant.

"Let's not," Audrey protested. "I've been so scared, and worried, by that girl, and by her dancing partner, that I'd like to go home." She turned to Parrish and Nona. "You folks won't mind coming up to the apartment, will you? We can have some music, and play cards or something. You'll forgive me, won't you, for not going to the theater?"

"All right," Morton said. "We'll walk—it's a fine night, and we ought to enjoy it."

Nona had swung to Parrish's side. The young man turned, as if to accompany Audrey, but the latter had placed her hands under her guardian's arm. Reluctantly, Parrish moved forward, with Nona beside him. He held his head stiffly erect, and studiously avoided brushing her arm with his sleeve. She looked sidewise at him, between narrowed lids. Then, deliberately, she thrust her arm through his. "Mr. Parrish, why do you hate me so?" she asked, softly.

He shook his head. She waited for an answer, but he strode steadily on. "I've never done anything to you," she told him, clinging a little closer.

"It's something I do not want to talk about," he said, austerely.

Morton, behind, had caught the words, and so had Audrey. He slackened his pace, so the other two could go ahead. "Let's let them talk it out," he suggested.

Audrey nodded, and they remained several paces in the rear, for the remainder of the walk. They could see the little, quick motions of Nona's right hand, as she talked earnestly to the young man beside her. Parrish kept his face straight forward, and protruded his elbow, so the girl who clung to his arm would be as far from him as possible. In this order, they arrived at the Morton apartment, and together went up the elevator. Parrish gave an audible sigh of relief when he turned to Audrey, and shook Nona's hand from his arm.

"I have a golf suit, now," he said. "Would you like to play tomorrow, before you rehearse?"

"Is it necessary to have a special suit to play golf in?" she asked, innocently.

Morton laughed. "That's my fault," he said. "I suggested that he get those clothes, and he has been waiting for his first golf game until the knickerbockers were ready. Can you show him how to hold the clubs?"

"I'm afraid I'm too busy," Audrey said. "Nona and I are working every afternoon, and I get so tired, I don't think I can play."

Parrish's face fell. "I just thought it might amuse you," he said.

Audrey compressed her lips, and was about to make a retort, but Morton interrupted. "Suppose you sing," he proposed, "and I'll play for you."

He looked significantly at Nona, and smiled. Nona herself was surveying Parrish, speculatively. "I'd love to hear Miss Morton sing," she said.

They gave their wraps to the servant, and Morton, rubbing his wrists and flexing his fingers, to limber them, went over to the organ. Audrey followed him.

Nona stood looking at a picture, until Parrish had found a chair, and stood beside it waiting for her to find her own seat. Then she moved across the room, and bringing a chair, sat beside him. He glanced around, as if seeking a way to escape.

"Sit down, Mr. Parrish," Nona said, patting the chair with her hand.

Surrendering, Parrish disconsolately obeyed. She leaned toward him, until her shoulder touched his. He drew away, and turned so he could see Audrey and Morton in the organ alcove. Nona's body retained its droop in his direction.

Audrey, leafing over a book of music, glanced at them, and interested, watched them for a moment. As she turned back to her music, there was a half-smile of satisfaction on Nona's face.

As Audrey began to sing, Nona carelessly dropped her arm across the back of her chair, and rested her hand lightly on Parrish's shoulder.

"Please let me alone," he hissed, turning his head.

She leaned closer and answered, softly: "Come down to the other end of the room! I want to tell you something."

He did not move, until she took him by the arm, and drew him to his feet. Hanging back, he followed her to the window, where they stood looking into the street below, as if listening to the music.

"Listen here, you fool!" Nona said to him, "I know that you want to marry Miss Morton. Do you want to know how to win her?"

AT REST

Heaman Sears was born at Burnsides, Hancock Co., Illinois, April 30, 1855 and passed to his reward April 28, 1926, Lacking just 2 days of being 71 years of age. He was of a family of ten children and grew to manhood on the farm where he was born and was married there to Miss Lizzie Clinton, September 4, 1881. They lived in the same neighborhood until the fall of 1896 when they came to Nodaway County, Mo., and settled on a farm west of Pickering from which they moved March 1, 1922, to the home where he died. So that in his whole 71 years he has lived in only 4 houses. On December 30, 1925, he accepted Christ as his Savior and was baptized by the Reverend T. M. Walton of Pickering. With his wife who had been a member of the Baptist Church for years, he was received into the fellowship of the Christian Church organization at Workman Chapel. On the 8th of last October while at his work about his home he suffered from heart trouble which gradually grew worse and he has been a great sufferer ever since until death relieved him.
Besides his wife who has so faithfully cared for him all these months he leaves a daughter, Mrs. Walter Griffith of Siam, Iowa, two grandchildren, Lester and Roine Piveral, and two brothers, Gilbert Sears of Dallas City, Illinois, and Frank Sears of Holly, Colorado, 3 childdren died in infancy. Mr. Sears was a very industrious and ambitious man, always busy and always ready to help wherever needed. A loving husband and father, a kind friend and neighbor has gone from among us and will be greatly missed.

HARMONY

Community News.

Mrs. R. V. McKee and daughter, Miss Dorris, were trading in Maryville last Saturday.

The Bible passage, "Dust thou art," has a striking present day application.

The third quarterly conference was held at the church Saturday evening. The Rev. Mr. Underwood presided and reports were received from all officials who were present.

L. A. King was a Ravenwood visitor last Saturday.

The prevailing epidemic made the attendance at the morning service rather light. The pastor spoke with some difficulty as he is just recovering from a severe attack of throat trouble.

The evening service was given over to the baccalaureate sermon by the Rev. Mr. Underwood. The members of the high school and the faculty were seated in the center of the auditorium. The following members of the alumni furnished the music. Miss Dorris McKee, Mrs. Estella Porter, Mrs. Everett Porter, Mrs. Vera Kelly, and Ross Edwards, Doyle Thomas, Perry Sapp, and Orville Kelly.

New song books have been ordered for use in our Sunday school and church services. It is planned to use the new books in a song service next Sunday evening. Come and help.

The pastor announced a Mother's Day Service for Sunday morning, May 9. There will be special music and it is hoped to have a large attendance. Communion will be observed at this hour.

Some corn will be planted this week if weather conditions continue good.

Have you had 'em?

Mr. Garten is putting in a fine cave on the farm where Otis McCall lives.

Mr. and Mrs. Ira Kelly and daughter, Arline, of Maryville, were members of our Sunday evening congregation.

School Notes.

Our annual School Banquet was held at the school building Wednesday evening, April 28. Eighty plates were laid, and three courses, were served. Preceding and between the course toasts, songs and responses were given. All members of the board of education were present, parents of the Seniors and parents of the oncoming Freshman class, and students of the high school. This event is looked forward to as one of the most enjoyable of our school functions.

The students and faculty of the high school attended the baccalaureate services in a body Sunday evening.

The prevailing epidemic of measles made necessary a postponement of our eighth grade graduation exercises until Friday evening, May 7. At this time a class of eleven will be graduated into the Freshman class of the high school, as follows: Orrel King, Orville Underwood, Maxine Edwards, Laurel Lee King, Roe Miller, Thelma Green, Genevieve Anderson, Everett West, Genie Neal, Pauline Heflin and Neva Evans.

Champaign received its certificate of approval as a first class school this week. This makes two of our ward schools that have been brought up to standard. It is the intention of the board to bring the remainder up as soon as possible.

Never do today what you can put off till tomorrow seems to be the motto relating to term work in high school.

Only finals remain to be played in our tennis tournament. The two teams still in are Howard Edwards and Lulu Cox, matched against Dale Wynn and Mildred Fanning.

In a news item appearing in the News-Press of last Friday's issue, in a write-up of our commencement exercises, it was stated that Harmony was a two-year school. This is an egregious blunder, and whoever is responsible for the mistake owes this community an apology. This school is a fully approved first-class four-year high school and has been for years.

EXCELSIOR ITEMS

Mr. and Mrs. Harvey Davison and children spent Suday with Mr. and Mrs. Robert Ramsey.

Mr. and Mrs. John Young of Pickering were callers at Charlie McKee's Monday.

Mildred Bird spent Saturday with Opal Poague.

Mr. and Mrs. R. M. Holmes, Schuyler Donnell and Mamie Holmes were Sunday guests in the Will Keith home.

Mr. and Mrs. Oscar Mutti and J. C. Pistole were callers at the home of Mrs. Millie Clymens Sunday evening.

Mr. and Mrs. Charlie Morehouse were dinner guests at Dow Huntsman's Sunday.

Pearl Pence was calling at Will Keith's Sunday. Merle Keith returned home with him to work the coming week.

Mr. and Mrs. Chas. Baker and son, Eldon, and Harry Bird visited relatives in Clarinda Sunday.

Mrs. Millie Clymens and daughter, Ina, called on Mrs. Grover Sparks Sunday morning.

Mr. and Mrs. Ray Cunning and Mr. and Mrs. Dow Huntsman were shopping in Maryville Monday.

Mr. and Mrs. Ross Wells and Lois, called on Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Wells in Bedford Friday evening.

The Worth While Club met with Mrs. Curtis Hodges Thursday afternoon. The club will meet with Mrs. Joe Clymens May 13.

Mr. Stoops and family called at the home of Floyd Moore Sunday evening.

Mrs. Curtis Hodges has been on the sick list the past week.

Seymour—Citizens have presented a petition to the City Council asking for a special election on May 11 to vote on a waterworks bond issue of $35,000. The proposition was voted down on April 6.

Closing Grain Review.

Chicago, May 5.—Grain prices closed irregular on the Chicago Board of Trade today.

Bullish elements in the day's news gradually gained some headway against the bearish situation caused by the British strike.

Wheat closed irregular being fractionally off for May new but fractionally upon all other deliveries. Weather reports from all sections were bullish but caused no sharp price rise because of the English situation, particularly because all British ports are tied up and it is impossible to make deliveries of grain. The fact that export business showed a slight gain and that Minneapolis futures indicated a better flour business were elements that helped steady the market.

Corn closed fractionally lower in all deliveries. This grain continued to show no particular trend of its own but was influenced slightly by the wheat pit.

Oats closed fractionally higher in all deliveries. The rise in prices is attributed to the strength displayed by wheat.

Provisions closed higher on the improved hog prices.

HOUSE PASSES AVIATION BILL

$300,000,000 FIVE-YEAR PROGRAM IS AUTHORIZED.

ADJOURNMENT JUNE 1?

President Is Informed Congress Will Quit Then—English Trial Set For November.

Washington, May 5.—The House today, without a record vote, passed the army 300-million-dollar five-year aviation program, which calls for 2,200 planes and 10 airships.

The measure would carry out the recommendations of the Morrow board and rectify some of the complaints advanced by the fliers. An assistant secretary would be appointed to handle army aviation.

Washington, May 5.—Congress will adjourn about June 1, President Coolidge was informed today by Representative Tilson of Connecticut, House Republican leader.

An agreement has been reached to postpone until November 15 or 22 the impeachment trial in the Senate of Federal Judge George W. English of East St. Louis, Ill., Tilson said.

English has agreed not to sit on the bench while awaiting trial.

Jimmy Montgomery Gets "Real" Baseball

Has Been Given First Ball Pitched at Opening of Western League Season at St. Joseph

Jimmy Montgomery, son of Mr. and Mrs. Bruce Montgomery, received, a few days ago, the first ball pitched at the opening of the Western League season at St. Joseph this year. The ball was sent to Jimmy by his friend Nufer, who holds down second base for the Saints. Nufer became acquainted with Jimmy some time ago through a traveling salesman who visits Maryville and sells Jimmy's father lots of shoes.

Dares Arctic, Saves Eskimos

Mrs. Golden Brady, nurse with the Alaskan division of the U. S. Bureau of Education, is just back in Kotzebue, Alaska, after a 400-mile dash, alone with her dogs, to save an influenza-stricken Eskimo settlement at Point Hope. It took her a week to get there and ten days to get back—but the Eskimos were saved. She is shown with her favorite dog, Nanyk.

M. H. S. Students And Faculty Enjoy Annual Field Day

Yesterday the student body of the Maryville High School, together with the faculty, laid aside all matters of study and examinations to enjoy their annual field day. They were entertained at the Marvin McNeal farm, five miles north of the city.

For recreation features they had baseball and volley ball games and for "eats" wieners, buns, salad, pop, Eskimo pies n'everything.

The field day was arranged by the student body officers in consultation with faculty members.

Chaos Still Grips Britain

there was nothing in the strike situation to bring cheer.

The nation's paralysis continues to be complete. Violence continues to increase in some unruly sections.

Several reinforcements of police reserves were sent to the stormy communistic Poplar district this morning following a serious outbreak of rioting during the night. The police were able to handle the situation without calling for troops but fresh outbreaks were expected.

Mob Attacks Auto Parties.

A mob, police reported, attacked several automobile parties, hurling one automobile and two motor trucks into the Thames. Another instance of disorder was reported on a train bearing soldiers from Portsmouth. An engineer is reported to have struck an army officer with his fist, standing the train in an isolated spot. The train was gotten into motion after several hours.

Liverpool, May 5—British shipping was menaced today when the sailors' and firemen's union was ordered to strike. This brings ocean and cross-channel service effective under the general strike order and may result in the complete tieup of all British ports.

Dirigible Leaves For Base At Spitzbergen

The Norge, Bearing Members of Amundsen-Ellsworth Polar Expedition, Hops Off in Fair Weather.

Leningrad, May 5—The dirigible Norge of the Amundsen-Ellsworth polar expedition hopped off for Spitzbergen, the arctic base of the expedition, at 10:35 o'clock this morning.

The high winds which have held the Norge in its hanger for the last week after it had prepared to leave died down this morning and only light breezes prevailed.

The hop-off was accompanied without difficulty, about two hundred soldiers of the Red army assisting the airship crew. There was no ceremony. Several soviet government officials were present and after shaking hands with Commander Nobile and other officers of the ship, the signal was given.

Advises from Spitzbergen stated that all was in readiness for the arrival of the Norge.
